A Great Tunnel Completed.

By Associated Press.

PORt HURON (Mich.), Sept. 19.—All trains arriving at Port Huron and Sarnia to-day have distinguished guests who come to take the first official ride through the great tunnel. At Port Edward a special train with four ordinary day coaches was drawn up in front of the station. At 12:30 o'clock the inaugural train started and pulled directly to the Sarnia depot, where a number of invited guests and citizens of Sarnia were taken aboard. Then the trains steamed out to the edge of town to reach the approach to the tunnel, where a triumphal arch was erected. Mayor Watson and officials of Sarnia met the President of the Grand Trunk Railway and the Mayor read an address. President Tyler made a brief speech of acceptance. The company with the Sarnia officials aboard the train proceeded on the trip through the tunnel. When they arrived on the other side they passed through another triumphal arch, where Mayor McLlwaine and Port Huron city officials were waiting on the platform to receive them. A large assemblage of citizens was also present. As soon as the railway officials stepped from the cars the Mayor read an address. At the conclusion of the reading the Mayor presented Sir Henry Tyler with an engrossed copy of the address and Sir Henry responded with a neat speech of thanks. The people cheered and waved their handkerchiefs and the train pulled for Chicago and the Grand Trunk passenger station, where all got off and embarked on the steamer Omar D. Conquer for Sarnia.

This triumph of modern engineering has been achieved under the swift outlet of Lake Huron to the surprise of the ferry system transporting the traffic of the Grand Trunk route from the American to the Canadian bank. The tunnel under the river is over a mile long and is lined throughout with solid cast iron plates bolted together in segments. The tunnel and approaches are a little over two miles in length. At the ends of the approaches are junctions with the Grand Trunk railroad on the Canadian side and Chicago and Grand Trunk railroad on the American side of the river. The cost of the tunnel proper was $1,460,000.

Erastus Wiman, in the course of his address, said: The great tunnel, which to-day is opened for the first time for traffic, is found a fitting complement of the magnificent achievements of Canadian railway systems. But while British capital within British Territory has done so much toward the development of the most important portion of the United States, how strange it is that relative progress has not been made within Canada itself. It is an interesting problem to solve to account for the retardation of progress made more remarkable than the world has ever before witnessed. In vain is the cause sought for, in natural or physical or financial disabilities. It seems to reside only within the political condition of which, while extremely favorable to Canada so far as freedom and good government is concerned, nevertheless, by her foreign policy has materially retarded her progress. For selfish political ends a barrier has been erected athwart the continent which has completely isolated one section of the English speaking race from the other, and which even great tunnels and great railway arteries pierce in vain so far as an increase in intimacy of relations between the two people is concerned. No trade between two countries will ever exist to justify so large an expenditure, so long as the policies of both are actuated by reciprocity in tariffs rather than reciprocity in trade. Let us hope the great tunnel which we now inaugurate will illustrate the blessed advantage of unrestricted intercourse to such a degree that before long perfect reciprocity which exists between the States of the Union and the provinces of the Dominion will be created between the two nations."

Guests arrived at the freight sheds, which had been turned into a banquet hall, shortly after 2 o'clock. The exterior was almost covered with green boughs and the interior festooned with flags and bunting. On the east side were three long tables running with the building, the guests facing the river. At the other side were thirteen short tables set crosswise. At the center of the middle long table sat Sir Henry Tyler, to his right was Sir John Ross, Commander-in-Chief of the troops in Canada; to the left sat Governor Wimans. Others on the left were Senator Smith, one of the Directors of the Grand Trunk, United States Consul Knapp of Montreal, D. McIntyre, Congressman J. Logan Chipman, Senator Bouton of Ottawa, Adjutant General Farrar, Hon. Mr. Ross of the Ontario Cabinet, J. Laster, M. P. for Lamport county, Senator Vidal of Sarnia. To the right after passing John Ross were Sir Gzowski, L. J. Sargent, General Manager of the Grand Trunk system, Richard R. Harcourt of the Ontario Cabinet, E. Wiman, John Bell, counsel of the Grand Trunk; Hon. Mr. Gilson, of the Ontario Cabinet; George M. Pullman, Charles Mackenzie, M. P., and on the end was Joseph Hobson, who built the tunnel. The post-prandial work began with a toast to the Queen, offered by Sir Henry Tyler. He spoke as follows:

"I arise, gentlemen, to propose to you the health of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, Queen of the United Kingdom, Empress of India and Sovereign of the British Empire. It is a matter of common knowledge that Her Majesty has reigned for 54 years, a longer time than any previous sovereign of England; but there are considerations connected with her reign far more important and of much higher interest than the mere length of days. During the lifetime of Her Majesty there have occurred events which have transformed the face of the earth. It is during the lifetime of Her Majesty that railways have for the first time been constructed; ocean steamships have been employed; telegraphic communication by land and sea been brought into use and the most remarkable discoveries have been made in chemistry, astronomy and other sciences. In drinking them heartily to the health of Her Majesty, we may profitably remember how much has occurred in her lifetime, and should now be grateful that while she has reigned so long, she has, what is more important, reigned so worthily and gained our affection by the example she has set as a wife, as a widow, as a mother and as a Queen."

The Queen's health was solemnly drunk and Sir Henry again came in with a few words for the President of the United States. Parts of his speech were as follows: "I am confident you will receive the next toast with equal heartiness." "His Excellency, the President of the United States, elected as representative of sixty-five millions of people. The President occupies, during his term of office, a unique position among nations. He presides over a country, containing within its products of all climes, from Alaska ice to orange groves of Florida. It will be a bad time for Great Britain when the United States, ceasing to levy protective duties, competes with her more actively in the markets of the world." Consul General Knapp responded to this.

The remainder of the toasts were to the Governor General of Canada, responded to by Sir John Ross and Sir Casimir Gzowski; "Governor of the State of Michigan," responded to by Governor Wimans; "Success of the Grand Trunk and St. Clair Tunnel Companies and Sir Henry Tyler," responded to by Sir Henry Tyler; "Engineer of Tunnel," responded to by Joseph Hobson; "Trade and Commerce," responded to by J. W. Palmer and Erastus Wiman; "Railway President of the Continent" and "The Press."

Upon being further pressed for his views on the subject, he positively refused to talk upon it.

The sum of $2,085,000 previously asked for the purpose of demonetized silver, does not appear in the new Budget and the Government is convinced that no measure in that direction will be necessary in 1892. The second Chamber to-day approved the proposal to consider the system of reform of the electoral franchise laws.

How to Sweep.

Many people make a disagreeable job of sweeping, by moving the broom too violently and in not properly preparing the surface. The operation is usually accompanied with too much dust. All this can be avoided by dispensing with the common practice of sprinkling the floor with water previous to the use of the broom, and by supplying the moisture in a different way. By laying a line of wet sawdust right across one end of the apartment, and by sweeping it foot by foot to the other end, it will in its passage pick up every bit of dust without raising any in the air. By adding to the conduct a small proportion of any disinfectant it is obvious that the cleaning will be still more effectual.

The Petrified Woman.

This wonderful curiosity can be seen on Virginia street, opposite the GAZETTE office, from now on to the close of Fair week. The Spanish Flood.
By Cable and Associated Press.]

MADRID, Sept. 19.—The bodies of twelve victims of the flood at Consuegra have been buried. The town wears a most desolate aspect. An official report of the disaster says that 530 buildings in Consuegra have vanished from their sites, while 130 are in a precarious condition and need to be demolished. Ten men are under arrest at Consuegra, charged with robbing the dead. The damage done by the floods is now estimated at $4,000,000. The river Araguanza, as a result of the flood, has changed its course to a considerable extent.

Disasters from Consuegra this morning state that the workmen who have been engaged in moving the dead and drowned cattle, have left in a body and positively refuse to resume work. They claim the stench arising from the bodies is so severe that no human being can handle them. Large quantities of disinfectants are being sent for and it is expected the work of clearing the streets will be resumed this afternoon. The country around the flooded districts is swarming with marauders. The authorities are employing all available force in succoring the destitute and in attempting to move away the worst wreckage remaining on the streets and buildings.

A Warning.

Ortiz, the man who figured at the head of the shooting escapade night before last, departed this life in a hurry last night and the community can congratulate itself on being well rid of a worthless vagabond, and the county has saved at least ten thousand dollars by the act of the citizens last night. Now, if they will keep right on and send out a few notices to a lot of tin horn fellows and vagrants to leave town and see that they go, we will have a peaceable and law-abiding community here for several years to come. Last night's work will be a lesson to the roughs who are too handy with their little guns, and are trying so hard to establish a reputation of being "bad men." A man who is in the habit of filling himself with bug juice and on the slightest provocation pulling his pistol and shooting indiscriminately, endangering the lives of law-abiding citizens, should take heed. There has been altogether too much of that sort of thing here and it is high time that it is stopped.

It costs over one thousand dollars per month to care for the worthless element that finds shelter within the town limits, and last night's work will reduce the expense fully five hundred dollars per month if the safety committee will do but very little more work in the way of giving out notices.

While we have good officers to guard our lives and property, the town is left at night, or the greater portion of it, with but one man on duty, and we would respectfully suggest to the Commissioners the advisability of employing one more man. We think that the tax-payers would cheerfully stand an expense of seventy-five or one hundred dollars per month to employ another man as faithful as officer Nash to accompany a watchman in his nightly rounds. It is too much to ask or expect one man to look after a town the size of Reno. Situated as we are on the main thoroughfare across the continent, we are at all times subjected to an unwelcome element that needs watching at every turn.

While we are about it we would also suggest to the District Attorney and Justice of the Peace that in dealing with tramps and vagrants that they prosecute them, when occasion requires, to the full extent of the law. A ten or twenty days' sentence only gives them time to rest up and prepare for another raid, when if they were dealt with to the fullest extent they would soon learn to steer clear of Reno.

The startling fact is shown by reports of the Massachusetts Commissioners of prisons that during the last fifty years, while the population of the State has only trebled, the number of criminals has increased fifty fold. There is one prisoner to every 400 inhabitants in the State, and in Boston one to every 222 inhabitants. This large proportion, however, includes re-committments. These facts are interpreted by Mr. William P. Andrews, for many years Clerk of the Criminal Court at Salem, Mass., as evidence that the "reformatory" conduct of prisons has caused an alarming increase of crime, and that the substitution of reformatory for punitive treatment is fast bringing us to State socialism through the attractiveness of prison life. Mr. Andrews will contribute an article to the October Forum, containing the result of many years' observation of the working of the two systems.

The work done by the Salt Lake Convention may be summed up in the following resolutions adopted.

Resolved, That this Congress is in favor of granting in trust to the States and Territories needful of irrigation all lands now a part of the public domain within such States and Territories, excepting mineral lands, for the purpose of developing irrigation to render the lands now arid, fertile, and capable of supporting a population.

Resolved, That said grant of lands should be made by the United States, so conditioned that the State or Territory receiving the benefit shall use the funds derived from the sale or lease of such lands to promote the reclamation of arid lands, and surplus remaining to be added to the school fund of the State or Territory in which such surplus occurs.

Resolved, That the trust so created shall be so conditioned as to secure the ownership of irrigable land to actual settlers in suitable holdings.

Now it remains for Congress to say whether the request of the people living in the arid region shall be granted or not.

INVOLUNTARY HOMAGE.

Beauty the Cause of Many a Man's Downfall.

It is one of the penalties, or, as some would say, one of the rewards, of beauty, that everyone wishes to look at it. There are times, however, when even the love of the beautiful must be held in check. The New York Sun describes an occurrence in Nassau street, by which four prosperous citizens of the metropolis learned this lesson, one day last winter, in a sudden and striking manner.

A group of three unusually pretty young women were walking along the sidewalk. Such attractive visitors are not very numerous in this sordid quarter of the town, and the girls found themselves the objects of a good deal of attention from the hurrying throng of bachelors, brokers and clerks.

In front of one block the stone flagging had been worn very smooth, and the messenger boys had made several highly slippery slides upon the thin covering of ice. Still the spots could easily be avoided if a man had his eyes open, and the walk was safe enough until the three pretty girls came along. But during the minute and a half of their passing, no less than four men went sprawling to the ground.

The young of the victims were walking toward the young women, and in turn went flat in the path before them. The fourth man had passed them, and rashly turned his head to look back. He was greatly demoralized. He was an old man, apparently a retired banker, very dignified in his appearance. His tall hat went into the gutter, and an amazing shifting of his scalp-lock betrayed the fact that his thin iron-gray hair was not a natural growth.

The girls seemed not to understand the significance of the accidents until the third man went down. When they realized that all this abject but involuntary homage was being paid to them, they almost lost their own footing, and when the fourth gentleman went down they could no longer control themselves, but buried their noses in their muffs and hastened across the street.

THE KING OF SPAIN.
An Ancient Spanish Custom Still Observed by the Queen.

The little king of Spain is very frank and unrestrained in his expression of opinions, and sometimes makes personal remarks about his subjects of a sort seldom indulged in by older and more diplomatic kings. He is very mischievous, but his attendants, in keeping him out of scrapes, have to take great care not to "inpair the dignity of his most Catholic majesty." Harper's Weekly, from which this sketch is taken, says that a footman who put out his arms and caught the king one day when the little fellow tripped, was dismissed from his post for having dared to touch with his plebeian hands, the royal person. True, the queen rewarded the man with a large sum of money, and gave him another situation, but even she could not retain him in the household.

On Good Friday, according to a custom which has prevailed in Spain since the sixteenth century, seven criminals received pardon. As soon as vespers were over in the chapel of the royal palace, the cardinal archbishop of Toledo stepped down from the high altar, and approached a table on which were laid seven rolls of parchment.

Each roll contained the full pardon of a prisoner lying under sentence of death, and had, a few hours previously, received the regent's signature. Placing his hand on these rolls, according to custom, the chaplain asked the queen: "Senora, does your majesty grant pardon to these criminals?"

With a tender glance at the little boy, whose hand she held, she replied:

"In the name of the king, my son, I pardon these persons, as I look to God to grant His pardon and mercy to us. Amen."

The rolls were then placed on the high altar, and, after a prayer and benediction, delivered to the minister of justice.

AN AGREEABLE EMPRESS.
Her Royal Majesty of Austria Accommodates a Poor Woman.

The celebrated Dr. Metzger, of Amsterdam, who has successfully treated the empress of Austria, has only one waiting-room for all his patients, whatever their rank or condition, says La Boeuf Messenger. Each has to wait his turn. Some time ago a poor woman, who happened to be there, turned to her neighbor, a lady of distinguished appearance, notwithstanding the simplicity of her attire, and said:

"How long have we to wait, to be sure? I dare say you have got a little child at home, too?"

"No."

"But when you get back, you will have to sweep out your rooms?"

"No, I have folks who do that for me."

"Indeed? But you'll want to get dinner ready?"

"Not even that, for I dine at the hotel."

"Very well, as you have nothing particular to do, you might let me have your turn?"

"Very willingly," replied the lady, who was the empress of Austria.

Fun at a Camp Meeting.

The solemnity of a Maine camp meeting came near being broken up by a festive mosquito the other day. A devout attendant became convinced that he had been singled out by a particularly persistent and vicious insect. As he bowed his head in the attitude of prayer the little piping poison bottle perched on his neck, and a sense of proper decorum was all that restrained a blow. The insect was gently dislodged with the left hand, but immediately took refuge on the right ear of the sorely tempted worshiper. Up went the right hand, and the bug took his departure, to reappear on the other ear. It was no use, the restraint of a lifetime was thrown off, and with a mighty thrust out went the right hand and snatched at the little offender, when to the consternation of two people and the irrepressible amusement of a score or less devout worshippers, the gentleman found in his hand the feather of a lady's hat and the lady felt her hat violently wrenched from her bowed head.

ORTIZ HUNG!

The County and Town Well Rid of a Worthless Vagabond.

The Man Who Was So Handy With His Gun Departs This Life at the End of a Rope.

Last night about 10 o'clock it was plain to be seen by a close observer that something was going to happen. Prominent citizens were missed from their usual haunts and the town was as quiet as the grave. At about 11:45 a hundred or more men were seen coming down First street, preceded by an advance guard who stopped every pedestrian they came to and ordered them back. The men comprising the committee were all disguised by having handkerchiefs tied across their faces. They immediately took up

A LINE OF MARCH
Across the iron bridge toward the court-house, leaving guards at either end of the bridge. They quietly filed into the corridor, leading to the jail, where several raps attracted the attention of Under Sheriff Caughlin, who, suspecting nothing unusual, opened the door and was at once covered by half a dozen or more revolvers. The

Deputy Sheriff at first seemed to be inclined to SHOW FIGHT.

But finding himself at so great a disadvantage, he inquired what was wanted. He was immediately seized by half a dozen or more men and told to give up the keys to the jail. He refused, when they were taken from his pocket, and while the Under Sheriff was securely held and covered with revolvers, the advance guard quietly unlocked the jail and cell occupied by Ortiz, and he was told to "get up, that he was wanted down town." "All right," replied the culprit, when he was led from the jail, the door being locked as they passed out. They took Ortiz to the

IRON BRIDGE,

And asked him if he had anything to say, to which he replied: "I would like a glass of water and a priest." He then gave his name and told where his relatives resided, and requested they be written to stating that he was dead, but not telling them the manner of his death. He was informed that a priest was not present, and that his request in that particular could not be complied with. He was given a drink of water, also a flask of whisky, which he drank eagerly. His feet and hands were quickly tied, a rope thrown over a cross-beam of the bridge and at the command of

"HAUL AWAY"

He was soon suspended between heaven and earth, and in a few moments life was extinct. The committee then quietly dispersed and went to their respective homes. Coroner Peers and undertaker Sanders cut the body down at an early hour this morning, and now nothing remains to be done but hold an inquest and bury the remains of Ortiz from the sight of man forever. The following him. He was arrested and paid a small fine and was discharged. He next appeared on the boards of his tragic life at Davis' saloon, on the alley back of the Palace Hotel, where he was engaged in a cutting scrape with three men, beating one man over the head, cut his ear off, and otherwise carved him up and left him for dead in Douglass alley. For this crime he was arrested and brought before Judge Linn on a charge of assault with intent to kill, and was bound over to appear before the Grand Jury. District Attorney Julien, after investigation, concluded the evidence was not sufficient to convict him and dismissed the charge, and had him immediately arrested on a charge of assault. He was again taken before Judge Linn, and upon conviction was fined $75, which was paid by his friends, with the understanding that he would leave town and never return. He went from here to Soda Springs and remained about two months, returning on the 10 o'clock train last Thursday night and was informed that he had better jump the town at once or he would be arrested. He replied that he would like to see any — of a — of an officer try to arrest him. He subsequently found his way into the Grand Central Hotel where he drank freely until 12 o'clock and became crazy drunk and blood-thirsty and began the shooting which culminated in wounding two men and the lynching of Bravo alias Ortiz, who was one of the worst characters that ever invaded this or any other town, and his tragic ending is but a fitting termination of an ill-spent life.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

An inquest was held on the body of Ortiz this afternoon and the jury found a verdict in accordance with the above facts. To-wit: That the deceased came to his death at the hands of parties to the jury unknown.

LINCOLN AS A LAWYER.

How He "Skinned" a Pension Agent for a Poor Old Widow.

As a lawyer Abraham Lincoln used to say that the best way to gain a just case was to free it from legal technicalities and get it "properly swung to the jury." In his "Life of Lincoln" Mr. Herndon tells a story to illustrate what his former law partner meant by that peculiar phrase. A certain pension agent had recovered for the widow of a revolutionary soldier the sum of four hundred dollars due and unpaid to her husband at his death, and had retained one-half of the amount for his fee. The claimant, a crippled old woman, hobled into the office and told her story. It stirred Lincoln up, he brought suit against the agent, and on the day of the trial he said:

"I am going to skin Wright and get that money back." He did so. When the case came up Lincoln put the white-haired claimant on the stand and she told her story to the jury. When it was ended Lincoln drew a picture of the hardships of Valley Forge, describing the soldiers as creeping barefoot over the ice and marking their tracks with their bleeding feet. Then he contrasted the hardships endured for their country with the hardened action of the agent in fleecing the old woman of one-half of her pension. He was merciless: the members of the jury were in tears, and the agent writhed in his seat under the castigation of Lincoln's denunciation. The jury returned a verdict in her favor for the full amount and Lincoln made no charge for his services.

A Pathetic Record.

The ex-Empress Eugenie, during her recent visit to France, was called upon to fill up a census paper. She made the entries in her own handwriting, made tremulous by rheumatism, and there is a great deal of history and no little pathos in the brief record: "Countesse de Pierrefort (Marie Eugenie), age 64; born at Grenada, Spain; naturalized French; a widow; had one son—a son; lives on income; of no profession or business; a sojourner in France; lives usually in England; is traveling with two friends and four servants."

Flight of the Falcon.

A king of France once had a falcon which escaped from Fontainebleau, and in twenty-four hours after was found in Malta, a space computed to be at not less than one thousand three hundred and fifty miles, a velocity equal to fifty-six miles an hour, supposing the hawk to have been on the wing the whole time.
